President's Message

2010 was a year of maintaining and sharpening the focus on our educational mission while addressing the institutional change and growth inherent in adding the Museum Hill gardens to our existing mountain and wetland preserves.

The economic slowdown continued through 2010 which proved challenging for us, as it has for all not-for-profits. As always, operating expenses were tightly controlled and new sources of revenue identified. To provide more financial security for our future a planned giving program, the Legacy Society, was established.

With the Museum Hill capital campaign structure in place the campaign's "quiet phase" began in 2010. We have been gratified with the response in these challenging times and look forward to a very productive 2011. Further, construction within the garden site will kick off during the first half of 2011.

As we work together to move the SFBG through a period of change, challenge and growth, I want to thank our dedicated staff, Linda, Fran and Cristina, our devoted and essential volunteers, our all-important financial supporters as well as my fellow members of the Board of Directors for their help and support during 2010.

Charles C. Newman

2010 in Review

The Organization

The Santa Fe Botanical Garden (SFBG) is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit corporation, established in 1987 by a small group of gardeners, botanists and environmentally oriented people who shared the vision of establishing a botanical garden in Santa Fe. Their vision grew, and in 1992 a membership program was initiated.

Education and community service have remained the primary goals of the SFBG, and we continue to offer relevant workshops and events for visitors of all ages that focus on horticultural design, plant selection, and stewardship of our natural environments.

Organizational Structure

The Santa Fe Botanical Garden is guided by a Board of Directors elected at the organization's annual meeting in April. Each Director is elected to a two-year term and may be re-elected for three consecutive terms. Officers, including a President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer, are also elected at the April annual meeting.

A full time Executive Director handles the management of operations including project management of the Botanical Garden at Museum Hill project. A full time Outreach Director is responsible for membership and volunteer management, program and event planning, as well as advertising and publicity. A part time Development Associate manages donor records and supports the fundraising efforts of the Development Committee.

Committees play a crucial role in the organization. Current structure places designated committees under the authority of an executive committee. Some committees have standing subcommittees. Committee and subcommittee members are approved by the Board, but are not restricted to board members. Standing committees are: Executive; Finance; Development & Membership; Marketing & Public Relations; Sites; Education & Outreach.

Three Locations

Leonora Curtin Wetland Preserve

In 1993 the Santa Fe Botanical Garden entered into a long-term lease with the trustees of El Rancho de las Golondrinas for a 35-acre site, the Leonora Curtin Wetland Preserve (LCWP), which quickly became the focus of much of the organization's educational programming. The unique and fragile beauty of this land is a treasure in Santa Fe. Many dedicated volunteers have spent countless hours removing exotic and invasive plants, restoring the habitat through revegetation and ensuring that the pond remains a healthy environment for riparian plants, birds and invertebrates. Improvements, including a floating dock, boardwalk and bird blind, have allowed visitors access to the site without damaging its delicate ecosystem.

The LCWP is open to visitors on Saturday mornings and Sunday afternoons from May through October. Docent led walks are conducted on Saturday mornings, or by appointment. Approximately 2,000 people visited the preserve in 2010.

Ortiz Mountains Educational Preserve

The 1,350 acre Ortiz Mountains Educational Preserve (OMEP) was acquired by the Santa Fe Botanical Garden in 2001 as one condition in the settlement agreement of a lawsuit requiring the cessation of mining activities by a mining conglomerate. The preserve is protected by a conservation easement overseen by the Santa Fe Conservation Trust. Since assuming stewardship of this land, volunteers have made it accessible to our visitors with the addition of a network of trails and a visitors' kiosk. In 2007 the land was sold to the County of Santa Fe, while management of the preserve remains the responsibility of the SFBG. Each season a series of free lecture tours and hikes is offered to the public on varied topics including the history of gold mining in the Ortiz Mountains, native plant communities at 8,000 feet, photographing the natural landscape, early morning bird walks, and more.

Access to the preserve is restricted to docent led events that are scheduled each season from May through October. Approximately 500 people visited the OMEP in 2010.

Botanical Garden at Museum Hill

In December 2006 11.25 acres of land was leased from the City of Santa Fe that stretches along either side of the Arroyo de los Pinos off Camino Lejo for the development of a new botanical garden. Landscape architect W. Gary Smith was hired to design the garden. Smith is an award-winning landscape architect who has designed public gardens across the country. Development costs have been funded by the State of New Mexico through capital outlay grants in 2006, 2007 and 2008.

In November 2010 an additional 1.69 acres of land was leased from the State of New Mexico, providing contiguous access from the Museum of New Mexico Overflow Parking Lot to the Old Pecos Trail; in total almost 13 acres upon which a garden will be constructed. First to be constructed will be the Orchard Gardens. Ground breaking is anticipated for late 2011.

The Botanical Garden at Museum Hill will provide an opportunity to greatly expand the organization's educational outreach activities. Unlike the preserves, this cultivated garden will include a living collection of plants chosen for their adaptation to local conditions, their proven performance and for their beauty. The collection will be managed according to accepted botanical garden protocols. Its central location near a cluster of Santa Fe's finest museums will encourage program collaboration and partnership.

Planning is complete for a new section of a city-wide bike trail that will run through the Arroyo Trails section of the new garden. The project is a collaborative effort between the City of Santa Fe and the Santa Fe Botanical Garden. Construction of the bike trail will begin in Spring, 2011.

Signature Events

Among SFBG programs offered each year are three signature events that are both educational and fun.

Garden Tours

Over 800 people attend annual June tours, featuring private gardens located throughout Santa Fe. Garden styles are as varied and diverse as the gardeners who tend them, but all are standouts. 2010 was the tour's 15th year – and judging from attendance, it continues to grow in popularity. Garden Tours are a major fundraising event for the organization. Ticket sales support general operations.

A pre-tour gourmet picnic lunch was held at the Egolf estate. The event was a picture-perfect garden party enjoyed by 200 guests. Lovely box lunches were prepared by Walter Burke Catering. Lunch tickets sold out quickly.

2010 Garden Tour Sponsors: Los Alamos National Bank, Agua Fria Nursery, Chamisa Landscaping, Clemens and Associates, Inc., Coates Tree Service, McDowell Construction, Milestone Stone and Tile Experts, netPros Computer Services, Payne's Nurseries, Santa Fe Greenhouses, Spears Architects, Tropic of Capricorn, and Wild Birds Unlimited.

In-kind Sponsors: Albuquerque, C.G. Higgins Confections, Chocolate Maven, Copy Shack, Inc., Design with Nature, Josh's Barbeque, Marble Brewery, Paper Tiger, Plaza Café and Bakery, Santa Fe Greenhouses, the Santa Fe New Mexican, Sleeping Dog Tavern, Trader Joe's, Walter Burke Catering, Whole Foods.

Plant Sale

The 4th annual plant sale was held on Labor Day weekend under a tent at the Museum of New Mexico overflow parking lot and future home of the Santa Fe Botanical Garden at Museum Hill. The sale featured a Friday members' only evening and a Saturday public sale. Attendance is growing each year as the word spreads about the wonderful selection of garden ornaments, reliable perennials, ornamental grasses, bulbs, and shrubs, many displaying brilliant fall color. Plant experts from the ranks of our staff and membership take an active role, offering information on the attributes and requirements of the plants that are available for purchase. Proceeds from the sale support general operations. The addition of a members' only preview sale was very popular and resulted in a number of new memberships. This event was sponsored by Wells Fargo Bank.

Children's Holiday Craft Workshop

The Children's Holiday Craft Workshop celebrated its 10th anniversary in 2010. This event is offered free to children in the Santa Fe community and is held at the Genoveva Chavez Community Center. Thirty-four volunteers provided craft materials, refreshments and assisted approximately 120 children, accompanied by parents, grandparents, aunts, uncles, or friends in making the following crafts: Hand-stamping vegetable designs on tea towels, decorating wooden boxes and grapevine wreaths with dried flowers, building a festive container with narcissus bulbs, painting gourds, constructing tiny wreaths from sweet gum balls, creating dog and cat crafts tied up with raffia, constructing wooly sheep made from cardboard, clothespins and pretty yarn, arranging centerpieces with glittery pine cones, stuffing pretty fabric bags with lavender, and rolling pine cones in peanut butter and birdseed into a winter bird feeder for our feathered friends. This event has been generously sponsored by Ann Mumford for the last 4 years.

Achievements and Accomplishments

Children's Education Program at the Leonora Curtin Wetland Preserve

The Education Committee comprised of former board members, retired teachers and SFBG members is dedicated to environmental science education for elementary school students and has offered programs at the Leonora Curtin Wetland Preserve to the Santa Fe Public Schools since 2005. Programs serve approximately 500 third-grade students annually, through school field trips held in spring and fall of each year. Field trips are designed to support teachers' classroom curriculum, and are based upon New Mexico grade-appropriate science standards.

May 2010: Wetland Wonders

Students participated in activities that demonstrated the role of cattails and their importance to a wetland habitat; the significance of wetlands to bird migration; and the examination under magnification of invertebrates scooped from the pond. Students took with them the knowledge of the interactive relationship between a healthy wetlands and the well-being of humans, plants and animals.

September, 2010: Plant Pressing and Nature Walk

Each student assembled their own plant press, collected leaves from the Rio Grande cottonwood, Russian olive and three-leaf sumac, and were shown how to properly press the leaves for future study and preservation. The students learned about the physical properties of each plant. The field trip concluded with a nature walk through the preserve.

Meadows, Wildflowers & Grasses Conference

In September the Santa Fe Botanical Garden, in partnership with the Santa Fe Chapter of the New Mexico Native Plant Society and the Santa Fe Master Gardener Association, held a conference on the art and science of creating meadows. The event was held in the auditorium of the Institute of American Indian Art. 160 people attended, far exceeding expectations.

Speakers John Greenlee, David Salman, Dr. Kelly Allred, Donald Heinz and Judith Phillips were each outstanding. Lunch was provided in the school cafeteria.

The conference addressed the usefulness and ecology of creating constructed meadows in the residential landscape. John Greenlee is a nationally-know landscape designer and leader in this area, eliminating blue grass lawns one meadow at a time. David Salman added suggestions for native perennials that add color and interest to the meadow grasses. Dr. Allred gave a historical perspective to the topic, while landscape designer Judith Phillips talked more generally about sustainable design. Donald Heinz, retired from the Bureau of Land Management, spoke about the control of noxious weeds in the landscape.

Capital Campaign for the Santa Fe Botanical Garden at Museum Hill

Planning began in 2010 in earnest on the capital campaign to raise funds necessary to begin construction of the garden. Board member Cathy Kalenian is the chairperson of our fundraising committee. Member Joan Dayton is the chair person of the Committee of Community Leaders, a small team of accomplished people who are advising our efforts.

Landscape architect W. Gary Smith and architect Beverly Spears have completed construction documents for the Orchard Gardens. The project will be put out to bid in Spring, 2011. Schematic designs of the Courtyard Gardens and the Naturalistic Gardens have also been completed. Groundbreaking is planned for 2011.

Engineering will soon provide the technical requirements to adapt an orphaned highway bridge for our use to span the Arroyo de los Pinos and connect the gardens separated by topography. The history of the bridge will provide a fascinating chapter in the larger story of the Santa Fe Botanical Garden at Museum Hill.

Many curious SFBG members, neighbors and interested people in the community have taken tours, led by board president Charles Newman, and have appreciated the opportunity to see the site before groundbreaking. Tours are available for anyone who would like to see where the garden is located and how the garden destinations will be placed in the landscape.
